

Ellie's Phrasal Verbs

Check out

Okay guys, this one is for you. Your friend tells you he was in a bar last night. And it was full of girls, cute girls, girls looking for guys. He tells you, "you should check it out sometime."

You decide to check out the bar right away, that evening. Just as your friend said, it's full of cute girls. A beautiful blond is sitting alone reading a book. You sit down beside her and ask, "what are you reading?"

"War And Peace," she says, "by Tolstoy, have you read it?"

Of course you haven't read it. You don't read books. So you say, "not yet. I tried to check it out of the library last week but my library ticket has expired."

The girl smiles, "I'm almost finished. I could lend it to you."

She's looking at you, looking you up and down, checking you out. She closes the book and you begin to sweat.

You talk. She tells you she has a boyfriend. You tell her you have a girlfriend. So you check into a hotel together. In the morning you check out together. What happens between the check in and the check out?

I'll leave that to your imagination!